

TIKI

Network Audio Player

The Tiki delivers premium performance to the realm of digital audio.

The Plinius Tiki is a DLNA compatible Digital Network player designed to perform as a network connected Digital to Analogue converter.

With advantages over USB and S/PDIF in areas of isolation, clock configuration, simplicity of design, cable lengths and multi-room capability, Ethernet was a clear choice in capturing the potential of quality digital audio transmission. It also proves a platform which will be supported by future developments that are just around the corner.

The foundation of the DAC is taken from the acclaimed Plinius CD-101 Compact Disc Player and while DAC capability is increasing, the Tiki DAC stage with a modest specification, delivers necessary features and exceptional performance.

With a widely adopted 24 bit, 192ks/s capability, the Tiki offers a high definition above that of the standard compact disc, which at only 16bit, 44.1ks/s is already a reference quality source when done well. Popular files types such as FLAC, LPCM, AIFF and MP3 are all catered for.

The control point for the Tiki is with the Plinius Arataki Application, communicating between the server that manages the library of audio files, and the Tiki that converts them to analogue audio.
